Lachlan/George – see below meeting request from Robbie Katter to meet with Damien. Damien is happy to do it and it will really be about saying nothing to do with us (except the benefits of rural investment like NAPCo), but just wanted to give you a heads up and if there is anything you think we need for background let me know.

Meeting likely to be mid-August.

Cheers

Hello Lorraine,

Thank you so much for your assistance. I am emailing following our conversations in regard to a meeting request.

As discussed, Mr Robbie Katter MP recently met with Sir Leo Hielscher who suggested that Robbie could meet with Damien Frawley – to discuss certain matters in the context of his role in developing the Rural Debt and Drought Taskforce Report, and the current Bill before Parliament: the Rural and Regional Adjustment (Development Assistance) Amendment Bill 2016 .

We look forward to hearing from you ,

QIC enters strategic renewable energy partnership with AGL

$800 million investment alongside AGL (ASX:AGL) to accelerate decarbonisation in Australia

QIC today announced, on behalf of its managed clients the Future Fund and those invested in the QIC Global Infrastructure Fund (QGIF), its $800 million investment alongside AGL Energy Limited (AGL) in the Powering Australian Renewables Fund (PARF).

This strategic partnership is the first of its kind in the development of large scale renewable energy infrastructure in Australia.

PARF will be a $2-3 billion owner of more than 1,000MW of large-scale renewable energy projects to support Australia's renewable energy capacity and transition to a low-carbon economy. Once fully invested, PARF expects to own approximately 10% of Australia's renewable energy capacity.

OVERVIEW

1. The Federal Government's Renewable Energy Target (RET) requires Australia to have approximately 20% of its power sourced from large-scale renewable energy by 2020.
2. Today, total renewable energy capacity in Australia installed or under construction is approximately 50% of this target (c.5,000MW). This has taken 14 years to build since the first target was set in 2002.
3. Generation from PARF will be approximately >3,000GWh
 - This will abate circa 2.7 million tonnes of greenhouse gas emissions OR
 - Is enough power to power circa 530,000 homes OR
 - Is equivalent to removing circa 800,000 cars from the road

QIC CEO Damien Frawley said the partnership was a positive and important national step in the global trend towards decarbonisation: "QIC is proud to create this 'first of a kind' partnership between institutional capital and a key energy industry participant such as AGL.

"PARF is the most significant step to date towards meeting the Australian Federal Government's Renewable Energy Target (RET), and should contribute up to 10% towards the overall target. This is the equivalent of taking 800,000 cars off the road or saving approximately 2.7 million tons of greenhouse gas. At the same time we expect to deliver strong risk-adjusted returns for key clients by developing a pipeline of large scale renewable energy generation in Australia.

"We have a track record of strong ESG practices within the assets we acquire and then actively managing them. This partnership is a significant and more strategic step to develop the Australian renewables sector as a whole, while delivering target investment returns for our clients," said Damien.

Ross Israel, QIC's Head of Global Infrastructure, said: "We expect renewables, in combination with energy storage and smart grid technologies, to disrupt the existing electricity value chain in the future.

"This partnership paves the way for future investment that supports Australia's transition to a low-carbon economy.

"Development of renewables infrastructure has previously been risky for institutional capital. Barriers to investment included policy uncertainty, the resulting pricing fluctuations and the difficulty for industry participants and institutional investors alike to finding partners with both the expertise and the capital to work across the whole renewables value chain.

"In partnership, QIC and AGL are able to develop, own and manage both existing (brownfield) and new (greenfield) renewable assets, while establishing a governance framework to derisk the investment. The relationship leverages AGL's development expertise, and their scale as one of Australia's largest energy retailers, to provide long term offtake (retail sale) agreements. QIC brings active asset management expertise and deep sector capability.

"We considered our entry strategy into renewables in Australia for many years. It's now pleasing to have secured this partnership with AGL. Through it we can provide our clients with a portfolio diversification strategy into Australian renewables," said Ross.

AGL Managing Director & CEO Andy Vesey concluded by saying: "We are pleased to have such high quality fund managers backing the PARF, and to seeing this initiative spur investment and development in support of Australia's transition to a low-carbon economy."

In addition to the $800 million commitment from QIC's managed clients, AGL has provided $200 million of cornerstone equity. PARF will be a key part of Australia's renewable energy capacity representing around 10% by 2020 upon successfully reaching 1,000MW.

QIC CEO Damien Frawley and AGL Managing Director & CEO Andy Vesey at this morning's announcement in Sydney.

More information

PARF OVERVIEW

- Created to develop, own and manage $2-3 billion of large-scale renewable energy projects in Australia.
- Once fully invested PARF will own approximately 1,000MW of installed capacity and will be the largest single owner of renewable energy capacity in Australia.
- Accelerates Australia’s transition to a low-carbon economy, with the potential to meet 10% of the Federal Government’s Renewable Energy Target (RET).

Existing assets include:

- QIC, on behalf of managed clients the Future Fund and those invested in the QGIF, is initially acquiring two operating assets then working with AGL to develop further projects to build out a diversified portfolio in Australia.
- The two seed operating assets are the first large scale solar plants developed in Australia at Nyngan (102MW) and Broken Hill (52MW) NSW, which were commissioned in 2015.
- Then, two new significant wind generation projects in QLD and NSW, have been identified for development in 2017/18.

Subject: Toowoomba Grand Central opportunities

Hi all

QIC owns the Grand Central shopping centre in Toowoomba, which is undergoing a massive expansion. The project will be complete in March, but Stage One of approximately 50 shops is planned to open on 15 September. We haven't confirmed this date publicly, though we have been saying we are targeting an opening before the Carnival of Flowers (which starts 16 September).

I think there are two opportunities for the Premier and/or Treasurer:

1. Visiting in the next three or so weeks, inspecting progress and announcing the confirmed Stage One opening date of 15 September
2. Visiting on 16 September (I note 15 September is a sitting day, but we need to open that day) to celebrate the opening and also potentially opening the Carnival of Flowers

Can you let me know if you're interested in these opportunities and we can make arrangements?

Cheers

Hi Jason

We are locking in travel arrangements. Just confirming advice from QTC that the Treasurer doesn't need QIC involvement prior to the lunch on Thursday - is that right? Damien is happy to fit in with whatever the Treasurer wants.

Also, do you want us to organise anything for the Friday morning, and if so is there anything the Treasurer might be interested in?

The Queensland Government's Department of Environment and Heritage Protection and the Carbon Market Institute would like to thank you for confirming your attendance at the Queensland Industry Summit, to be held in Brisbane next Tuesday 18th October. We look forward to your involvement in what is sure to be a fantastic event.

There has been tremendous interest in both the full-day event, as well as the networking drinks and dinner that will immediately follow the completion of the final session. As a result, the venue is at capacity which will ensure the room will be full of industry and innovation leaders discussing how the private sector and Queensland Government can work together on transitioning Queensland to a low – and ultimately zero – carbon economy.

Your experience and insight will assist to start an ongoing conversation about how we can take advantage of low carbon opportunities in Queensland and lay the foundation for greater collaboration and commercial interaction across industry, finance, research and government. The outcomes of the summit will inform some of the great work currently underway to develop a Queensland Climate Transition Strategy.

Just FYI, we were invited to be involved in an event with Minister Bailey tomorrow as we (with our partner Scentre Group) contributed funding to the Exit 54 upgrade. We're not participating, but just so you're aware – we haven't seen a release but it may reference our contribution.

Cheers

Daniel

Subject: End of works photo opportunity for Exit 54

Good afternoon Scott,

Thank you for your time on the phone just now, and apologies again for interrupting your leave and the late notice on this event.

As advised, the State Government Minister for Main Roads, The Honourable Mark Bailey, will be attending the Exit 54 site tomorrow at 11am to 'announce' that works have been completed. He will be joined by the Federal Member for Forde, Mr Bert Van Manen. The Minister's Office will invite relevant TV, radio and print media. There will be no 'ribbon-cutting' or speech type event, rather Minister Bailey will address the media outlining the work that has been completed, the benefit to stakeholders and the community, and acknowledge funding contributions. There will then be an opportunity to visit site locations for photos.

Site parking will be situated at the new Lower Coomera Cemetery car park, accessed via the southbound motorway off-ramp and taking the third exit at the new roundabout at the end of the ramp.

Could you please advise the relevant contacts in QIC and Westfields and have someone get back to me this afternoon to confirm details of who will be attending, it would be greatly appreciated.

I am on leave from this afternoon also, and have copied in two of my counterparts who will be managing the site visit tomorrow (Rachael and Anna). Please ensure they are copied in to any email correspondence.

Kind regards,

Larissa Burke
